

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A device for housing the frame containing the reed(s) in a caller for producing sound to attract wild game, said housing device comprising essentially planar elastomeric material defining an essentially planar cavity adapted to relatively snugly capture the frame without interfering with the sound producing characteristics of the reed(s). Said housing may include a resiliently flexible flap facilitating adapted to closely contact the user's palate.

002017-030810260